All six European routes, against their own normal pricing

4 of the 6 averaged below normal over the period. London did not — both airports ran slightly above, which is worth knowing before booking.

WHY THE COMPARISON MATTERS

$575 to Rome and $98 to Charleston aren't comparable numbers. Every fare is measured against what that specific route normally costs, so an unusually good price is obvious and an ordinary one doesn't get called a deal.

EVERYTHING DEPARTS RIC

No driving to Dulles or Baltimore first. These are fares a Richmonder can book from their own airport, which is the whole point of tracking them separately.

About these numbers. Six European routes out of RIC, 56 observed fares, part of 255 graded between August 17 and October 19, 2026. Each fare is real and was seen on the date listed; airfare moves, so prices are accurate as of that date rather than today. 64 days is a real sample but not a seasonal one. Fare-level data available on request.
