FARES GRADED	DAYS TRACKED	BUSINESS ROUTES	ABOVE NORMAL

Business routes out of RIC, against their own normal price

Every fare is compared with what that specific route normally costs, so a $289 New York ticket and an $837 London ticket can be judged on the same scale. Navy means Richmond travelers paid a premium.

The uncomfortable comparison

The routes that come in cheapest out of Richmond are the ones companies rarely book.

BUSINESS ROUTES — ABOVE NORMAL
New York (JFK)	26% above
Chicago (Midway)	20% above
New York (LaGuardia)	16% above
Chicago (O'Hare)	14% above
London (Heathrow)	5% above

LEISURE ROUTES — BELOW NORMAL
Orlando	41% below · from $52
Charleston	37% below · from $98
Tampa	29% below · from $103
Nashville	26% below · from $127
Fort Myers	21% below · from $128

Method. Each fare is graded against what that specific route normally costs, not a flat dollar threshold. Figures above are averages across every fare observed on each route between August 17 and October 20, 2026. Fare-level data available on request, including the normal price for each route so any figure here can be checked.
Caveats. These are fares observed over 64 days, not every fare that existed. Prices are accurate as of the date each was found. 64 days is a real sample but not a seasonal one, and business routes may price differently around holidays.
